EARLY HISTORY OF HONG KONG

The history of the Hong Kong community is really much longer than the history of the Colony itself. It begins with the arrival of the first Europeans, the Portuguese, on the China coast, in 1513, and in the problems they faced in trying to establish commercial relations with China, where the main current of authoritative opinion was traditionally not interested in foreign trade.

By dint of persistence, the Portuguese were allowed to establish themselves at Macao, in 1557, but when the British and Dutch reached the Far East, in the first decade of the 17th century, they found their way blocked by Chinese refusal to deal with any Europeans other than the Portuguese. Operating from their base at Bantam, in West Java, the East India Company first established a trading factory near Nagasaki, Japan (1613-23), but it proved a commercial failure and was closed down. Beginning with the Weddell expedition in 1635, a number of British attempts were made to open trade with Canton, Amoy, and other Chinese ports; but it was not until 1700 that regular British trade with China began, as a result of a change in Chinese policy, permitting trade with countries that did not acknowledge China as suzerain.

From then on, European trade with China developed steadily, with the British as the principal European nation concerned. From about 1705 the East India Company had a house in Canton, but Europeans were obliged to quit the city during the off-season. Other European companies and individual traders soon solved this problem by renting houses in Macao, a practice which, though strictly against Portuguese law, was tolerated. In 1773 East India Company followed the example of other nations and established themselves permanently in Macao, the Company's officers proceeding to Canton for each trading season.

Trade with the Chinese was conducted through a Chinese monopoly guild, charging prices far in excess of market values, and itself subject to ruthless extortion by corrupt officials. Two British diplomatic missions, in 1793 and 1816, failed to obtain better treatment of British merchants in China, or a better basis for international trade; and little change might have been expected had not the East India Company's charter been abolished, in India in 1813, and in China in 1833. These changes were the direct result of the acquisition of power in Great Britain by a new class, owing its wealth and influence to the Industrial Revolution, with free trade as its commercial doctrine. The China trade fell firmly into the hands of those independent merchants who, while the East India Company remained in power, had had only limited chances of showing their capability.

The British led the way in demanding that the Chinese Government provide Europeans with a port, where they could be free to trade with whom they wished, under their own laws. Finally, on the long-term issue of proper treatment for foreign traders, and on the more immediate issue of the import of opium into China, war between Great Britain and China broke out (1839-42). In the course of this, the Emperor's negotiator with a British plenipotentiary, Captain Charles Elliot, R.N. provisionally offered the island of Hong Kong as a trading depot. This offer was immediately accepted, and without waiting for its confirmation the British occupied the island in January 1841. The cession of Hong Kong to the British Crown was confirmed by the Treaty of Nanking, 1842. From the start, Hong Kong was declared a free port, open to all comers, and thus it has grown into one of the world's greatest international trading centres.

In 1860, by the Convention of Peking, Kowloon and Stonecutters' Island were ceded to the Crown; and in 1898, by another Convention of Peking, the area known as the New Territories was leased to Great Britain for 99 years, thus bringing the Colony to its present size.

THE COLONY OF HONG KONG

Prior to 1841 there was no recognised name for the island of Hong Kong. The anchorage at Aberdeen was known to sailors at Heung Kong. The Chinese characters representing the name may be translated by "Fragrant Streams" or "Fragrant Harbour." Another possible rendering is "Heung's Harbour," the haunt of a notorious character named Heung.

Kowloon is the anglicised form of the Chinese Kau Lung (nine dragons). This name is derived from the ridge of nine hills which form a rampart along the northern side of the harbour and seem to guard the approach to China.

A book entitled "China" published in 1847, contains a chapter with the following heading: "Hong Kong, its position, prospects, character and utter worthlessness from every point of view to English." To-day one laughs at that prophecy. However when it was written there seemed to be reason for such gloomy forboding for the place had an unenviable reputation for rainstorms, typhoons, pirates, poisoners, malaria, dysentery, etc., and in England contempt for the new colony was expressed in the then popular song, "You may go to Hong Kong for me."

To-day this formerly despised possession is one of world's busiest ports, and for an eastern city is remarkably clean, peaceable and healthy. As one writer remarks: "Hong Kong is a splendid example of what can be accomplished by energy and capital associated with the courage and restraint that go hand-in-hand with British colonisation. Over 100 years of patient administration by 22 Governors and 12 Administrators have brought Hong Kong into the front rank of the world's commerce. This happy achievement is due in no small measure to the harmonious working of two such different peoples as the British and the Chinese."

Hong Kong Airport is at Kai Tak on the north shore of Kowloon Bay, some 4 miles from the centre of Kowloon, and is regularly used by 18 international airlines, including two local airlines, which provide frequent services to Europe, U.S.A., Canada, Australia and neighbouring territories, China excepted. The Colony is an important link on the main air routes of the Far East. B.O.A.C. operates 5 services per week to London, two of these being on the longer route via Singapore, the remainder being on the direct route via Bangkok. The present airport is normally open from dawn to dusk, but can be opened for night flying in emergency. The construction of a new airport also at Kai Tak which will permit 24-hour operation and use by the most modern type of aircraft is now well advanced. A flying boat base is adjacent to the airfield.

The Colony's products include a wide range of cotton piece-goods, cotton yarn, cotton singlets, shirts, embroidered outer-wear, towels, bed, table and toilet linen, footwear, enamel and aluminium wares, metal lanterns, plastic articles, vacuum flasks and jugs, lacquers, varnishes and paints, iron and steel bars and rounds, cement and foodstuffs (including beverages).

The best time to visit Hong Kong is during the winter months, when the pleasantest conditions are enjoyed. Between March and May the weather is apt to be changeable and clammy.

and from May till the end of September it is too hot and humid to be comfortable. The shade temperature ranges from 50 degree F. in January and February to 90 degree F. in the summer months, and greater extremes are known. The average shade temperature for the year is slightly over 70 degree F. Geologically, Hong Kong cannot be declared interesting, but it holds great attractions for the botanist and the entomologist. Its scenery is superb and there are few prettier drives than the one round the island or that on the mainland from Kowloon to Tai Po or Kowloon to Castle Peak. There are also glorious rambles to be had in winter on the island and in the mainland hills.

Few places can show such a variety of games and recreations. Golf, tennis and yachting are indulged in all the year round; football (Rugby and Association), cricket and hockey are played in the winter months; and during summer lawn bowls, lawn tennis, baseball and perfect bathing are enjoyed. The Jockey Club hold a three-day Annual Meeting every February in addition to the many other race meetings throughout the year.

In Hong Kong East meets West. The latest from London, Paris and New York can be found cheek by jowl, with all the alluring work of the Orient. If one wishes to travel in town one may do so by motor-car, taxi, bus, tram, rickshaw or sedan chair, while in the harbour motorboats, ferries, launches and sampans are at one's disposal.

The water is pure, the food good and plentiful, and hotel and boarding-house accommodation first class. Hong Kong boasts a University, secondary and primary schools, numerous places of worship, up-to-date hospitals, modern cinema houses, and the finest golf course (at Fan-ling, in the New Territories) in the Far East.

Administration

The Government of Hong Kong derives its constitutional authority from Letters Patent and Royal Instructions issued from time to time and is administered by a Governor assisted by an Executive Council and a Legislative Council. The Executive Council, which is consulted by the Governor on all important administrative matters, includes the Commander, British Forces, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, the Financial Secretary (who are members ex-officio), and such other members, both official and unofficial, as may be appointed. There are six official members and six unofficial members, three of whom are Chinese and one Portuguese.

The Legislative Council consists of the Governor as President, not more than nine official members and not more than eight unofficial members. There are nine official members, namely the five ex-officio members mentioned above, the Director of Public Works, the Director of Medical & Health Services, the Director of Urban Services and the Commissioner of Labour; and eight unofficial members, of whom one is nominated by the Chamber of Commerce and one by the Justices of the Peace. The remaining six, of whom four are Chinese and one Portuguese, are nominated by the Governor. The procedure of this Council, with the advice and consent of which all legislation is enacted and by which all expenditure from public funds has to be approved, is based on that of the House of Commons.

+ International signals.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Signal No. 1 gives information only and does not necessarily imply bad weather.

Signal No. 3 conveys definite warning of strong winds (mean hourly wind speed 22-33 knots). Gusts may exceed gale force.

Signals Nos. 5 to 8 convey definite warning of gales from different directions. Gusts may reach hurricane force. These four signals are of equal significance as regards wind speed but are for different wind directions.

Signal No. 9 will not necessarily be used if conditions warrant the hoisting of No. 10 as soon as it is evident that the gale will increase.

Signals will be lowered when danger is considered to be over.

The Black Ball (strong monsoon signal) will often be hoisted after winds have become strong. It will never be used to warn strong winds associated with storms.

THE CHINA SEAS NON-LOCAL STORM SIGNAL CODE FOR VISUAL STORM WARNINGS

(As amended by agreement between the Meteorological Service of Indo-China, the Central Weather Bureau of China, and the Royal Observatory, Hong Kong, and used from 1st January, 1950).

The following ten symbols are used:—

indicating the figures

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0

These signals are hoisted at the mast head and at the yard-arms of a storm signal mast, and have the following significance:—

- (a) 1 symbol at the mast head showing the time at which the centre of a storm was in the position indicated (Table I).
- (b) 4 symbols at one yard-arm showing the position of the centre. The two upper symbols give by their corresponding numbers the latitude in degrees; the two lower symbols the longitude in degrees (initial 1 omitted for longitudes of 100° or over).
- (c) 3 symbols at the other yard-arm. The two upper symbols of this group show the speed and direction of motion of the centre at the time of observation, or, alternatively, certain conditions (Table II).

The lowest symbol of this group shows the intensity of the storm, together with the degree of accuracy with which the centre has been located (Table III). The latter is specified as the radius of the circle whose centre is shown by the latitude and longitude. Thus the position indicated by the latitude and longitude signals does not purport to be the exact position of the storm centre, but merely the centre of a circle of specified radius within which the centre of the storm is believed to lie.
